

Walker Cabin in the Sunlight with Vintage Plow

Wood Burning Stove with Vintage Cooking Implements

Among them note choppers, graters, egg beater, ice tongs, and bed warmer.

The vintage high chair was donated to the cabin by Ron Kraus and Jill Goddard,
2 long-time dedicated PCNCA docents.

Fancy Rock Fireplace with Melba Walker's Snake Stick and Frank's Hand Built Table

The root (snake stick) was used by Melba to cajole her younger siblings into doing their chores after their mother passed away. Her son Walt donated the root to us for display in the cabin.

Display Board with Receipts from Movie Studios who Rented the Cabin, Movie Lobby Cards, and the Walker Sons' WWII Discharge Paperwork.

Note the vintage ironing board and iron, brass spittoon, vintage typewriter, and the unusual white slow cooker.

Frank and Hortense Walker slept in this room. Note the rope grid on the bed frame. The ropes served as that era's box springs. When the mattress started to sag, they would pull the ropes up tightly. This is the origin of the well known phrase "sleep tight, don't let the bed bugs bite."

Wash Day at the Walker Cabin

Note vintage wash board, agitator, and wringer washer. Water was hauled from the creek, heated on the wood burning stove, and added to the tub. It was a full day's work.

Outside View of Fancy Rock Fireplace